Re Item IV

Lack of unity of invention

This Authority considers that there are 2 inventions covered by the claims indicated as follows:

I: Claim 1-22,24-27 : A process for the preparation of steroid derivatives bearing in position 3 a triose moiety as claimed in claim 1.

II: Claim ²³24 : Two new compounds namely tomatidin-3-yl triose and demissidin-3-yl triose.

The reasons for which the inventions are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept, as required by Rule 13.1 PCT, are as follows:

The subject-matter of claims 1-22,24-27 concerns a process for the preparation of (potentially) known compounds whereas the subject-matter of claim 23 concerns new compounds. Thus, the prior art must be considered under two different aspects as there are two different technical problems to be solved, hence resulting in a non-unity.

D5 and D6 which are "E" documents not prior art according to the Chap II PCT proceedings.

Nevertheless, the extensive examination of that document, on the question whether it constitutes prior art or not, will depend essentially on the analysis of the claimed priority rights of the present application and will only be performed in the regional European proceedings to come.

Novelty of Invention 1 :

The subject-matter of the present application concerns the preparation of steroids bearing in position 3 a trisaccharidic moiety (saponins).

Since none of the available prior art discloses the claimed process, the subject-matter of invention 1 is considered new.

Inventive step of invention 1 :

D1, which is considered to represent the closest prior art, concerns the synthesis of saponins, consisting in synthetising the 1-->2 bond, then grafting the steroid and finally synthetising the 1-->3 bond.

The subject-matter of present invention 1 mainly differs in that the 1-->2 bond is created, then steroid is grafted (and finally the 1-->2 bond is synthetised : see claim 12).

The problem to be solved can be regarded as providing an alternative process for the preparation of triose steroids.

in D1-D3, the coupling between the sugar part and the steroid is performed by reacting a steroid, an halo-glycoside and AgOTf, while in D4 an -S-Et glycoside may be used in combination with AgOTf. in every case a "similar" intermediate as the one depicted under Formula XIII (triflate intermediate) is obtained.

Thus, the subject-matter of claim 1 of invention 1 is merely considered as an adaptation of the prior art using a 1-->3 disaccharide (of formula XIII) instead of a 1-->2 disaccharide.

The claims 2-22 do not seem to contain particular features that a man skilled in the art could not perform either by knowing the cited prior art or with his general knowledge (in particular of protecting groups).

Thus, at present, the subject-matter of invention 1 is not considered inventive.

Novelty of Invention 2 :

The subject-matter invention 2 concerns tomatidin-3-yl and demissidin-3-yl derivatives bearing in position 3 a trisaccharidic moiety .

Since none of the available prior art discloses the claimed compounds, the subject-matter of invention 2 is considered new.

Inventive step of invention 2 :

As no use or activity or comparative tests, etc, are provided in the present application for the two claimed compounds of invention 2, is it not possible to formulate a problem to be solved by the compounds of invention 2.

As new compounds are not patentable per se, no inventive step can be acknowledged for inventive 2.

Re Item VII

Certain defects in the international application

Claim 2 is dependant on itself instead of being dependant on claim 1 (Art. 6 PCT).
